Canze Loses Chicago Dinner On Giant Game

Bets McGraw He Can Name a Better Team in Marlin

By Louis Lee Arms

MARLIN, Tex., March 22.—Thanks to Steamer Al Demaree, the great Zim and sundry others, Manager McGraw, the Giants and the accompanying newspaper men will enjoy at some time in the nebulous future a dinner in one of those wild Chicago lobster palaces. When the waiter finally comes around with the bad news he will hand it to Monsieur Jacques, of Kansas City. Monsieur Jacques will then pay the check and to-day's baseball game at Emerson Field will forever be a closed chapter.

As Thomas Aloysius says there is one born every minute and two to take him. Only this time there were nine. Striding in from Emerson Field this morning Monsieur Jacques offered to wager the mooted dinner that he could select a ball team which would defeat, run over and otherwise humiliate a club chosen by John Joseph McGraw. Mister McGraw accepted the challenge with alacrity, and since Prince Henry Schaefer was confined to his bed both managers breathed easier in the matter of umpiring.

In fact, they settled the umpiring difficulties that have existed recently in these parts by doing their own umpiring. In view of the stakes being played for, this seemed the safest way. John Joseph umpired for five innings, giving great satisfaction to the ball players and no little to himself. This was hardly strange. Mister McGraw has been criticized umptimes for such a great number of years that he knows precisely how the job should be handled.

When he reminds one somewhat of a combination of Bill Klem and Lord Byron. He has the firm tonal qualities that are Klem's, and he jerks his thumb toward the clouds like Byron. He does not, however, sing, so the resemblance to Byron ceases with the thumb.

Mr. McGraw was aware that the entire assemblage was watching for the slightest sign of favoritism to his own club, and he may be said to have stood so straight that he leaned backward. At the end of five innings he retired and let Canze finish the job.

Monsieur Jacques, from the minor leagues, where the only difference between the work of an umpire and a burglar is the hours. In such a case, however, it is only natural that Monsieur Jacques has absorbed some of the baser standards of morality that exist in such centres as Kansas City.

When he attempted to call Fletcher out for interference and to designate a ball hit over third base by one of his men as fair, when it indubitably was not, Mister McGraw's team gently reminded him that he must have a bet on the game.

Call for Mr. Sweeney. Monsieur Jacques loudly protested he was only trying to do the fair thing, and the Giants, or those of them who were not in the room, immediately began paying Mr. Sweeney. However, no umpire's blood had been shed when the game ended in the ninth inning, as Traffic Manager Eddie Braun, who was in the room, had been paid by a disappearing immediately after the last man is out, and no one can find him.

The score was 6 to 1, though it should have been closer. With Canze's team in the rear 1 to 3. "Pop" Young dropped a fly ball in right field and then threw over the wire batting cage for a reverse English home run for the McGraws. The McGraws scored three runs and knocked a blue leaf out of Monsieur Canze's check book.

Even so, Al Demaree was really at fault. Steamer Al still pitches with the urbanity of a matinee idol, but he does not put any stuff on the old apple, as we say down in the clubhouse.

Anglow, "Ginger" O'Neill was first up in the eighth inning, with the score all tied at 1-1. "Ginger" had blown out two or three lungs during the afternoon yelling in the cause of McGraw, but he did not pitch in the eighth, as he was suspected that could yell much louder than he could hit.

But he snapped out a line single to left field. Switzer sacrificed and Pitt caught it. The McGraws scored on second base. The McGraws scored on second base. The McGraws scored on second base. The McGraws scored on second base.

Demaree Passes Two. In trying to make Doyle hit at a bad ball Demaree passed Laughing Larry and indicated to Doyle, by merely filling the bases. Fletcher then had an inspiration.

Zimmerman was the next man up, and he looked toward the plate captain, "Ginger" O'Neill. He seemed to be getting a little nervous. He seemed to be getting a little nervous. He seemed to be getting a little nervous.

So the great Zim hit the first ball pitched for a screaming single to left, which stood two runs and won the game right there.
